The primary concern in evaluating photocopy requests of unpublished works is the protection of the literary rights to the material. Physical condition is also a concern. An item will not be photocopied if doing so may cause damage or alter the item in any way. All photocopying will be completed by department staff. For a detailed discussion of the reproduction of unpublished works, please see "Policies and Regulations Governing the Use of Unpublished Works and Archival Collections."

By signing and submitting this application, the reader agrees to the following conditions:

- The reader will make separate application for each document they wish copied.
- The reader assumes all responsibility for infringement of the literary rights, copyrights, or other rights, pertaining to this material and for any liability caused or claimed by invasion of privacy. The reader further holds harmless and indemnifies The University of Tulsa and McFarlin Library and their agents, representatives, and employees in connection with any legal action that might arise as a consequence of reproduction.
- The reader will not further reproduce photocopies made for the reader's use, nor permit others to do so, without express permission of the copyright holder and the Head of Special Collections.
- Permission to photocopy does not constitute permission to publish. This right must be obtained by separate application to the Head of Special Collections and to the holder of the copyright or literary rights.

Please note that a record of your request for duplication may be retained due to issues of copyright and control.
